JJRI Services

What is the Juvenile Justice Reinvestment Initiative?

The Juvenile Justice Reinvestment Initiative was established in 2015 by Senate Bill 73. The Department of Social Services worked with the Department of Corrections and the Unified Judicial System to identify and implement community based treatment services for justice involved and at-risk youth.

How do I refer for services?

For youth at risk, but not involved with the legal system, parents, guardians, and/or schools can make referrals to the local JJRI provider who will complete an assessment with the youth and family to determine the appropriate treatment. For youth under the supervision of the Department of Corrections or the Unified Judicial System, the assigned worker will assist with the referral process.

Functional Family Therapy (FFT)

FFT is a family-based therapy that focuses on building skills to improve family relationships, reduce behavioral issues, and improve school performance. The identified client is typically between the ages of 10 and 18, and treatment is generally 3 to 5 months in length. FFT therapists will meet with the family as often as necessary within the family's home or location of the family's choosing.

Aggression Replacement Training (ART)

ART is designed to alter behaviors of chronically aggressive youth by using guided group discussions to correct anti-social thinking. ART is appropriate for youth between the ages of 12 and 18. It is generally 30 sessions in length and includes three interventions; social skills, anger control, and moral reasoning.

Moral Reconnection Therapy (MRT)

MRT combines education, group and individual activities, and structured exercises to assist participants in addressing negative thought and behavior patterns. MRT is appropriate for youth between the ages of 13 and 18 and includes 12 steps focusing on issues such as honesty, trust, acceptance, healing relationships, and setting goals.

Systems of Care (SOC) Pilot Program

SOC includes a wraparound approach to care coordination and service delivery for youth and families with complex needs. It is built on the values of being family driven, team-based, collaborative, individualized, and outcomes-based. SOC helps families to navigate and access services, while also giving them the skills they need to become more self-reliant.

Additional Services

During the JJRI assessment process, it may be determined that a youth has needs outside of what can be provided through FFT, ART or MRT. This may include other outpatient mental health, substance use disorder treatment services, or an in-patient residential treatment program. The community provider will make referrals to these services as deemed clinically appropriate based on the assessment.

The Department of Social Services does not exclude, deny benefits to, or otherwise discriminate against any person on the basis of actual or perceived race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, gender identity, sexual orientation or disability in admission or access to, or treatment or employment in its programs, activities, or services.
